

EDIT Course Descriptions

- EDIT 6600 Introduction to Instructional Technology (3 hrs)
An introduction to the field of Instructional Technology covering historical perspectives, current trends, and implications for school, military, and industry contexts.
- EDIT 6602 Instructional Design and Development (3 hrs)
An introduction to major instructional design models and theories of learning influential to the field of Instructional Design.
- EDIT 6606 Distance Learning Design (3 hrs)
Introduction to the theories of learning and design relevant to the development of instructional materials for the Internet. Students develop expertise in the use of relevant digital communication technologies and several learning management systems. Students create instructional materials deployable to the Internet and mobile devices.
- EDIT 6608 Instructional Technology Program Administration (3 hrs)
Introduction to the management of instructional technology programs. Students learn to effectively coordinate various aspects of instructional technology programs for schools and industry including budgeting, grant writing, materials ordering and acquisition, storage and security, and human resources. A required field experience is part of this course.
Prerequisite: EDIT 6607
- EDUC 7702 Advanced Media and Technology for Educators (3 hrs)
A survey of advanced technology tools relevant to the needs of classroom teachers, with an emphasis on integration.
Prerequisite: Competency in basic computer/Internet skills and technology tools such as Microsoft Office suite and Google.
- EDUC 6699 Methods and Interpretation of Educational Research (3 hrs)
A course in research ethics, practices, and methods in k-12 environments.